Arcari + Iovino Architects Land Prestigious Award

Little Ferry, N.J., November 7, 2011 — Arcari + Iovino Architects have been announced as the recipients of the prestigious New Jersey Firm of the Year by AIA New Jersey, a chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The statewide award is given each year to an exceptional architectural firm that exhibits excellence in the profession, and in its technical and community accomplishments.

“It’s quite an honor to have the recognition and respect of our colleagues in the profession,” said Edward Arcari, one of the firm’s principals.

Arcari + Iovino was also able to demonstrate a commitment to the community-at-large with the firm’s work with non-profit agencies and support of public libraries throughout the state. As well, Anthony Iovino’s service on the executive boards of the Meadowlands YMCA, the Meadowlands Regional Chamber of Commerce, and the Architects League of Northern NJ contributes to the firm’s reach in the professional community.

The firm specializes in public and corporate projects and has designed facilities for municipalities such as Hasbrouck Heights, Hackensack, Atlantic City, and institutions including Seton Hall School of Law, Berkeley College, Frito Lay, Sharp, and the Mizuho Financial Group.

The official award ceremony will be take place in January, 2012.
